Zad. 1

1.1 (n-I informatyki, mężczyzna)

Many teenagers spend hours online every day, but they don't always think about safety. Some people click on strange links or download free apps without checking them. This can lead to viruses or stolen personal data. Hackers may use this information to access accounts or send messages pretending to be someone else.

1.2 (wychowawca klasy - kobieta)

One serious danger on the internet is cyberbullying. People can write hurtful comments or share embarrassing photos because they feel anonymous online. Even one message can make someone feel stressed or lonely. The worst part is that bullying on the internet can continue all day and reach many people very quickly.

1.3 (policjantka)

Not everyone online is who they say they are. Some users create fake profiles with stolen photos and false information. They pretend to be friendly to gain trust, especially from young people. Later, they may ask for private details or photos. That's why it's important to be careful when talking to strangers online.

1.4 (policjant)

Another problem is spending too much time on social media and online games. People may stop meeting friends in real life or forget about homework and sleep. This can cause problems at school and at home. Using the internet is useful, but only if we know when to log off.
